		Planned budget
FY 69 - Section 44 (Manpower)	1
Input to Sec-4 General Survey	27

Discontinuance of the Labor inputs to the Manpower coverage and Section 4 of the General Survey would significantly increase OCI's burden in the production of this important NIS element. Specifically, such topics as labor organization and leadership, pressure groups, and wage rates would have to be researched and produced by OCI without the assistance of this experienced and specialized staff. Further, elimination of professional departmental analysis by Labor (with its unique sources of information) as a principal contributor to the intelligence community would seriously weaken U. S. national intelligence on developing dynamic forces and social pressures in foreign areas of national security interest.

QUALITY:

Labor has consistently provided complete and accurate Manpower coverage, usually requiring less than the average amount of editorial review effort.
